Year at a Glance

The following units may be presented throughout the year. Some units may be subject to change, combined, or may be eliminated altogether. Most units include a variety of supplemental non-fiction, poetry, or video texts.

A final assessment for the year will be assigned in May/ June. This assessment will be worth 10% of the overall course mark.

Of Mice and Men

This unit will serve as review of literary elements and writing composition fundamentals, while exploring overarching thematic considerations connected to “The Self and Society”

Short Stories

A selection of short stories will be used to re-enforce the literary and thematic content introduced in the last unit, while offering students a chance to consider works through a series of critical literary perspectives.

Othello

This unit builds off of students’ understanding of literary elements and thematic considerations from the short story unit, and offers students the chance to negotiate a traditionally more difficult text in an individualized context. Students will study the Shakespeare play in order to meet pre-determined learning outcomes ranging from simple comprehension to literary analysis to thematic synthesis.

Class Novel/ Inquiry Unit

Novel study based on the general thematic content of the inquiry unit, as well as considerations from any text studied previously. This unit may be combined with the final course assessment.

Assessments

Supplies

Binder, paper, pens, pencils, highlighters, usb or flash memory

 Supplies for creating visuals, posters, and 3D models may be required

Personal technology such as smartphones, tablets, or computers ARE NOT REQUIRED for daily use in my classroom. Students and parents are strongly encouraged to have a discussion of appropriate use of technology at school, and whether or not personal technology is needed in the classroom. In my experiences working with students, personal technology is a distraction far more often than it is an aid, and in numerous examples has added to academic difficulties throughout the school year.

Expectations

Be prepared to learn, be on time, be respectful

Simply put, students are expected to conduct themselves responsibly and respectfully at all times. Students are responsible for their own actions, attendance, and grades, and will be held accountable for these responsibilities. See the attached sheet for school performance standards for work habits.

Assignment Submission

Please see your school handbook in your app, or visit the school website, for SDSS's policy on plagiarism. Taking credit for an assignment or piece of writing that is not your own is called plagiarism, and it is a very serious offence. While students are encouraged to ask for help or clarification from sources outside the classroom, ultimately it is the student's own ideas, words, and efforts that should be evaluated and celebrated. In the event of a plagiarized assignment being submitted, the work shall receive a mark of zero, and parents and administration will be contacted.

It is expected that assignments will be submitted on time. If you think you will be unable to submit an assignment on time, you must see me before the due date to discuss.

Late assignments will be marked at my discretion; students wishing for me to mark late work sooner will need to schedule an appointment during Flex Time to conference with me.

Incomplete Assignments: Students who do not complete assignments reflecting prescribed learning outcomes run the risk of not receiving a 1st or 2nd term mark, or not successfully passing the year.

Parent / Student Connect

Attendance, assignment submission, and student work habit notations will be recorded on Teacher Connect and be made viewable on Parent Connect and Student Connect to students and parents. Overall course percentages will not be viewable until reporting periods. Any student or parent wishing to know a course percentage is encouraged to email or see me. I strongly urge both students and parents to refer to this site frequently for information regarding student performance.

Please note that Teacher/ Student/ Parent Connect is both a reporting and administrative tool, and is updated at an inconsistent rate according to my schedule. If you have any questions about what is entered on Student/ Parent Connect regarding the course, please see me.

Missed Class?

1. Check the website
2. Ask a classmate
3. Check the "extras" folder
4. See me between class, NOT during, and NOT just before the class starts.
5. Email me if your absences are extending.
